

Grant is there.

“ Making a difference
starts with empathy. ”

My journey with Quest Diagnostics began with an ad in the Sunday classifieds and has taken many turns during the past 20 years. My experiences and wonderful relationships built a strong foundation for my current role of project manager. The adage: “People don’t care how much you know until they know how much you care,” is a guiding light for the way people in Employer Solutions approach work. That truth is a big part of figuring out the puzzle of enjoying what you do and where you work.

I care about Quest Diagnostics and our employees because Quest cares about me. The culture supports passion in our work, continuous training and education, and giving back to the community. Each day there is an immense sense of pride when reflecting on the positive impact we make on the world.
