A strong sense of unity. I think that's the reason why so many employees at Quest Diagnostics have been contentedly working for our company for decades. In our heavily-regulated industry that is deeply dependent on processes, it takes a unified effort to ensure that our work is completed accurately and efficiently.

Corporate cultures tend to materialize from the top down. At Quest Diagnostics, it is apparent that our culture of unity starts with our leadership. Each challenge presents an opportunity for leaders to manage as well as to serve as they jump in and get their hands dirty. This unified effort is critical to our business because when employees from all levels of the organization come together to resolve a common goal, we can accomplish anything.
